

The dismissal is put on the ground of the personal unacceptability of the person in question. The latest dates from Europe at New York, are by the Indian (Royal Canadian steam line), which arrived at Quebec on the 3rd of June, having left Liverpool on the 21st of May. The Africa, at New York, brought dates to the 17th.

The relations between Sardinia and Austria are anything but pacific. A rupture seems imminent. Russia has accepted the Danish proposition for a commutation of the Sound Dues, and England will probably accede.

Still Later from Europe.

We take the following telegraphic dispatch from the Herald extra. It is three days later.

HALEFAX, June 5, 1856.

The royal mail steamship Niagara, Capt. Ryrie, arrived at this port at five o'clock last evening, but owing to the violent storm it was impossible to telegraph the news before the morning. The Niagara brings one hundred and thirty passengers for Boston, and her dates from Liverpool are to Saturday noon, the 24th ult., three days later than received by the Indian, at Quebec.

The steamship Arabia, from Boston, arrived at Liverpool on the 18th ult. The Varadero steamer North Star, arrived at Cowes on the 23d ult.

The Cunard steamship Persia, from New York, arrived on the 14th ult., at Liverpool, at the bar, at midnight of Friday, the 23d, but did not go up the river until half-past four on Saturday morning. This passage to the bar was made in nine days and seven hours, mean time.

The steamship Ericon, from New York on the 10th ult., had not been telegraphed at Liverpool when the Niagara left.

The steamship Washington sailed from Southampton for New York on the 21st ult.

After the departure of the Washington and Indiana, but little news of importance had transpired. The excitement on the Italian question still continued.

In the House of Commons, after a debate upon a motion censuring the abandonment by the plenipotentiaries of the Maritime Law, touching neutrals, the British Ministry again achieved a triumph.

Nothing decisive has transpired touching the Danish sound dues.

Reports of Russian successes in the new campaign against the Circassians are confirmed.

The Bank of England on the 22d ultimo reduced its rate of discount on bills of more than sixty days, from seven to six per cent. Short bills remain at six per cent.

FOREIGN SUMMARY.

Results of the Peace Treaty.

Considering the circumstances which occasioned the war, and the Powers engaged in it, this treaty is as good as could have been expected. From the beginning, neither Louis Bonaparte nor the English Ministry took a stand to destroy Russia, but only to render her incapable of jeopardizing Turkey, and to put the latter power under the shield of European international law. Both these aims are obtained. Russia is disarmed in the Black Sea; and Turkey is introduced into the family of European States, beyond whose range the Ottoman has been ever since its historical existence began, and above all since their appearance in Europe. All other interests, such as those of the Christians, of the Principalities, and the integrity of the Sultan's dominions, receive the amount of guaranty which treaties and protocols can afford. Treaties and protocols, or even statesmen, do not create or carve out the history of the world. Stipulations cannot make States grow and thrive, nor prevent their decay and fall. But though the treaty of Paris cannot instill any vitality into the Ottoman Empire, to my yet awakened what sparks may be left therein, and put off the day of dissolution.

This Treaty is marked by unusual good faith on all sides. The Sultan and his power are carefully looked after more so even than the security which his Christian subjects might require; for the Powers demand from him any direct protection over them and from all interference in their fate. The case of the Tartars in the Crimea, who may have taken part with the Allies, as well as of the Christians of Turkey who have helped Russia, is provided for. In one word, every ground in virtue of which Russia, by the force of events or by previous treaties, could have claimed to interfere in the Principalities, in Servia, or elsewhere, is annulled. In the emergency of a future misunderstanding between the Porte and any other Power, mediation previous to the use of force is to be employed. So stands this treaty. Not giving as much as was expected by the more ardent enemies of Russia, still it clips her enough to inaugurate a new page in the diplomatic history of Europe and opens the diplomatic relations. But the declaration annexed to the treaty concerning the right of neutrals from its most brilliant side. Privateering is thereby abolished, and the rights of neutrals as largely and firmly established as could have been done, with the present crude views of justice and injustice. It is not all that we might wish to see done, but still it is of great value. The goods of neutrals are to be sacred; but it would have been well to define precisely what is contraband of war. However, it is a step forward, and as such we greet it with satisfaction.

From Russia we have a speech of the Czar to the nobility of Moscow, announcing the ratification of peace, which is highly characteristic. The Czar with his three brothers, had suddenly left St. Petersburg for Moscow, and as it appears by the speech, he was in account of the dissatisfaction caused by the conclusion of peace. Alexander here explains his reasons for the peace, and does his utmost to assuage the public discontent. This proves that, however absolute a ruler may be, he is still compelled to pay some regard to popular opinion, which always finds some means of manifesting itself. The whole speech bears the stamp of a gentle and pacific mind, and this no doubt, is Alexander's great characteristic. With all his respectful protestations that he will continue the policy of his father, he is nevertheless evidently anxious to do what is always done in such cases—abandon that policy, step by step. The conclusion of his speech indicates that he intends to do away with the protection to home industry so wisely and steadily maintained by Nicholas, and to which Russia owes the remarkable power of resistance she has exhibited during the war.

INDIAN ANNEXATION.—We have published the intelligence that Oude, an Indian kingdom—estimated population 5,000,000, and area 34,000 square miles—had been recently annexed to the British realms in the sunny east. Late foreign papers contain the royal proclamation of the fact. The N. Y. Times gives the following abstract of this paper:—The preamble or recitative sets forth that Oude is an independent allied kingdom, whose intercourse with the British authorities has always been of the most faithful and satisfactory description; that in all his relations with the East India Company the monarch has ever been most exemplary, and that upon such grounds no provocation to disturb tranquility exists. It admits that by a treaty ratified in 1801, the independence of the native crown was guaranteed by the company against itself, and other usurpers. But as the reigning potentate has not found himself able to govern his people with that wisdom, moderation, and gentleness, another clause in that treaty required, the company declares the instrument cancelled, and the kingdom of Oude a province of the British Empire. Its population are forbidden to yield obedience to their deposed prince, or to any of his agents; and all the collectors of taxes and imposts are enjoined under the sternest penalties to bring their whole harvest to the Company's granary. The only reason presented for the annexation lies in the simple proposition—the people of Oude are not governed to the taste of the Court of Directors.

MR. SADDLER'S FRAUDS.—The Times, in a leader on this subject, says,—"It is a surprising fact that it should be in the power of any man to swindle his fellow-subjects to the amount of a million sterling, and yet this sum will probably fall short of the reality when the full extent of John Saddler's frauds has been ascertained. What with the Tipperary Bank, what with the forgeries of private acceptance, what with the frauds arising from the forgery of title-deeds, Ireland alone will stand as sufferer for the larger portion of the sum. The railway and bank accounts in London will complete the tale. There is no instance in history, as far as our recollection extends, which can serve as a parallel to this gigantic fraud."

We notice that Speaker Banks has had his first levee at Washington in April, and that he lives in the splendid mansion formerly owned by Madam Hamilton. This is a fine instance of the ups and downs in a Democratic country. Mr. Banks, unless we are much mistaken, was professionally a dancing-master, and his handsome wife, a factory girl. This is the true Democratic reality, no hereditary humbug, no factitious stars and garters, no cant of fundamental precedents and quarrels of position. A dancing-master and a factory-girl figure in the Highest Ranks of our democracy, and doubtless fill their places with quite as much manner and matter, as my Lord Fitzgibbon or Sir Twopenny Bramble.

THE METHODIST BOOK CONCERN.—The report of the Methodist Book concern for the year 1855, presented to the Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Baltimore, states that the periodicals, except the Christian Advocate, failed to meet the expenses of the publication. The assets of the concern amount to $738,977 against which there are liabilities to the amount of $170,249, leaving a capital stock of $568,727.

The pen with which the treaty of peace was signed was made from the quill taken from the wing of an eagle at the Jardin des Plantes. Immediately after the signature, it was placed on a white sheet of paper and surrounded by the seal of the Powers represented at the Congress, and by the signatures of the Plenipotentiaries. At the bottom, M. Feuille de Conches, Chef de Bureau du Protocol, wrote:—"I certify that this pen was taken by me from the imperial eagle at the Jardin des Plantes, and that it served for the signature of the Treaty of Peace of the 30th of March, 1856." The whole was then placed in a gilt frame and a glass fixed over it, to be presented to the Empress.

THE WORLD'S SHIPPING.—The German Quarterly Magazine has an article on the world's marine, from which it appears that the waters of the earth are navigated by 140,000 vessels, of 12,964,687 tons. The United States have 5,000,000 tons of shipping, Great Britain 5,000,000, Germany, including Austria, 1,000,000, and France 716,140 tons.

The London Times is now stereotyped, by which means the whole of the country circulation is now got into the post office in time for transmission by the morning mails. This important change went into operation on the 1st of January last, and will doubtless be the means of greatly extending the circulation of that journal to the detriment of the rest of the metropolitan daily papers.

M. Pouillet, of the Academy at Paris, has an apparatus determining the height of clouds by the aid of photography; and at St. Petersburg, the camera has been made to do good service in the reduction and reproduction of large topographical maps.

In Australia, New Zealand, the Friendly and Foe Islands, there are 40 Wesleyan ministers, besides a number of native assistant missionaries. There are 19,897 members, of whom 7100 are Europeans, and the rest native converts. There are 481 chapels, 80,000 hearers, and 35,576 Sabbath and day scholars.

New companies have been formed for increasing the amount of the French merchant navy. All the ship builders at Marseilles, Bayonne, Nantes, and Saint Malo, have received orders for building ships that will take more than two years to complete.

The Anglo French contingent will go to Trebizond, and be placed under the command of Omar Pacha.

The Russian treasury has received large sums of money through Berlin. English war material was constantly passing through Prussia for the army.

The London Times quotes several of the New York Tribune's theatrical criticisms, at full length, under the heads of "Splendid Writing in America."

A return was recently issued, which represents that on the first of January, 1855 the number of registered steam vessels in Great Britain was 1480.

Louis Napoleon is about to enter upon the same measures of free trade which have contributed so much to strengthen the commercial position of England.

One of the superstitions of France is that a fire kindled by lightning cannot be extinguished, and that he who attempts to extinguish it will die within the year.

It would be a curious chapter in history if the present Murat should become king of Naples. During the reign of Louis Philippe this individual kept a boarding-house in the United States.

David Solomon, a Jew, late senior Alderman below the chair, is now Lord Mayor for London. He is the first Jew who has ever filled that office.

They are to have a submarine telegraph to Europe by way of Norway. The King of Sweden has granted a charter for its construction.

The London Times says:—"We shall not be over the mark if we put our share in the cost of the Russian war, during the year just ended, at £34,000,000."

The restrictions on the importation of salt into Russia have been abolished.

Rio Janeiro and Buenos Ayres are now lighted by gas.

Silliman's Journal says:—"The city of Marseilles has undertaken to establish a complete system of electric clocks. One hundred clocks was to be set up by the first of May. The arrangements require the laying of 40,000 metres of conducting wire. The clocks will be placed in the street gas lamps, so that the hour may be read at night as well as by day. The whole will cost only 22,000 francs, and the care and supply of them per year 2000 francs."

The New York papers are publishing a wonderful story in relation to an American who returned from Russia by the last steamer. He has, it is stated, secured from the Russian government contracts for railroads, telegraphs and other public works on the most gigantic scale and on very favorable terms. In addition to the enterprises above named, he has become largely interested in property belonging to the Archduchess Marie, sister to the Emperor, and to others of the Princes and Princesses of the house of Romanoffsky. The aggregate cost of the works undertaken representing the enormous amount of $26,000,000. Such stories defeat their own object, as only the most credulous can believe them.—Baltimore American.
